THE ILLINOIS RACING QUESTION.

There are measures before the representatives of the people of Illinois, assembled in a body by special call, which seek to legalize racing. Out of hypocrisy and the false and specious notion of busy men, who go to reform in itinerant and unhealthy ways, racing has been degraded. A speculative side issue of racing which has handled it in a sordid way has contributed to the fund of falsity. This speculative barnacle has used a noble sport for mere gambling purposes and getting into the newspaperic eye by gaudy methods has been pictured as representative. Mere speculation is not healthy in a general way. The racing crowd of speculators were bolder than the mercantile band.

A similar crew is on board every ship of public business. The dry goods, grocery, railroad and Board of Trade industries cover just as furtive a band of operators as the turf. The latter paraded their odds, while the former disguised theirs. Each band had the same "shade" and each as eagerly sought cheats.

The newspapers—attracted by display and ease of gathering news—turned toward the turf speculator and sensationally told of his operations. The other fellows, working in less public lines, escaped through the tunnels of newspaper sloth. In consequence so-called public opinion—careless and superficial; because lazy and busy with the affairs of the individuals that created it—marked turf speculation for its scape goat. The creators of this opinion had to mark something—to cover their own—let us call it unpublicness. That's hypocrisy. Therefore race track "gambling"—so-called—was chosen for the action of the elastic law of the land. The men who owned the race courses upon which horses ran, failed to face the hypocritical foe as it should have been faced. To avoid trouble and interference with a profitable business, the race track owners elected to be branded as gamblers and in folly drifted to the bribing of politicians for the purpose of securing the right to enable them to do that which they had a natural right to do. It cost the race track people huge sums. The goods for which they paid were not delivered.

Clumsy legalism exposed the flaws in what alleged rights the race tracks owned. Their owners were branded as criminals by the Illinois courts. They either retired or were driven out of business. Chicago has had no racing of account since 1894 until last summer at Harlem. That meeting was illegal. The closing of Washington Park, Hawthorne and Harlem has cost Chicago merchants $5,000,000 yearly since 1894. It has benefited New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Detroit and other towns by just so much.

The same ban against an industry that had no more right to be selected for the ban than a dozen others of considered worth cost the horse breeders of Illinois as much almost as it cost the merchants of Chicago. It took from the broad industry of American horse breeding four times as much more. Horse prices were cut into four by reason of the Illinois racing closure.

The crusade against the sport was built on a false foundation. Racing needed regulation: not abolition. Men have as much right to earn a profit by the rearing or the racing of a horse as by the sale of a pound of tea, a peck of potatoes or a yard of flannel. So the courts will decide if stanchly and reasonably asked to do so. The bookmaker is not the prop and pillar of the turf. Neither is the track owner. Many men race horses for what their horses can earn in prizes offered for speed. Many men operatdry goods, grocery and drug stores for what they can get for their wares, over and above the prices which they paid for them.

If racing men chose to go to the American courts in a systematic and high class way they could legitimize their trade and prove, as European turfmen have proven, that racing is not a matter of gambling. They have, however, chosen the shabby avenues of technicality and been branded in consequence. This does not apply to the Jockey Club, which has been able, by the high class energy and character of its officials, to regulate eastern racing of limited geographical lines in excellent fashion.

What American thoroughbred racing seems most to need is division and dominance. There is too much ground for one, two or three bodies to cover. There should be a national organization, of course. That means unity, regulation and purity. But local conditions apply too sharply for the rulers in San Francisco to even aid in governing racing matters in New York.

The bookmaker has caused most of the troubles from which the western racing suffers. He is too flamboyant and too competitive. He leans toward poolroomism too strongly, also. Who can blame him? An active man in any business naturally chooses the most profitable corners of his industry, as he discerns them. The pool room game is one of mere percentage of profit. There is indecent rivalry over it in every fertile field. This rivalry was the chief cause of the present local sterility. The old law which closed the race tracks is a tough proposition as to pool rooms, turning back as it does to the criminal code.

The entire matter of American racing is one of mere regulation. There is no chance on earth that Chicago people—wiser than any other people about racing—will not use their judgment and money to bear upon it. They have as much right to do so as a man has to buy wheat, cloth, tea or sugar and wait for an advance or a fall in prices, for profit or loss. It is infinitely better to let a race track centralize such investments than to have hand-books—so-called—of furtive methods operate in every corner of the town—as they are now doing.

This all leads to the main matter—the racing measures before the Illinois Senate—Senator Fitzpatrick's and Representative Carmody's House measure. The bills are identical. They will add some $300,000 to the State's revenue, are reasonable in structure, will regulate racing in Chicago and the State of Illinois, benefit its breeders and its merchants, abolish the pool room evil and legalize a noble sport—racing—and a noble industry—the breeding and improvement of the American horse.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

The first quotations for the English Derby are now published, and half a dozen names are mentioned as being supported in a moderate way. The Duke of Devonshire's Dieudonne, by Amphion—Mon Droit, was made the favorite at 6 to 1 against Mr. Wallace Johnstone's Disraeli, by Galopin—Lady Yardley, standing next in favor at 7 to 1. Dunlop, by Ayrshire—Fortuna, was quoted at 100 to 6; Batt, by Sheen—Vampire, at 100 to 6; Orzil, by Ayrshire—Merry Miser, at 20 to 1, and St. Maur, by Orme—St. Mary, at 33 to 1. The Derby which will be run May 25 this year, is a more open event than for a number of years, and should furnish a great contest.

In the English Spring Handicaps American horses are entered as follows: Lord W. Beresford's Berzak in the City and Suburban, to be run April 30, and the Kempton Park Great Jubilee Stakes, May 7. P. Lorillard's Diakka and R. Croker's Dobbins in the same events. Mack Briggs in the Lincolnshire Handicap, run March 22. James R. Keene's St. Cloud II and Voter in the Lincolnshire, City and Suburban, and Kempton Park Great Jubilee Stakes. P. Lorillard's Sandia in the City and Suburban and Kempton Park Great Jubilee.

Clawson received quite a handsome New Year's present yesterday from the Thompson brothers. Clawson rode the firm's L'Alouette to victory in last year's Futurity and was well paid for his mount. Yesterday he received a splendid Tiffany split-second watch to remind him of his ride. (San Francisco Examiner.)

Harry Reed is wintering splendidly and will be used as a sprinter only this year. Last year he was trained over a distance of ground and the process apparently dulled the edge of the fine speed he had before been noted for.

The stewards of the Jockey Club day before yesterday elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year: August Belmont, chairman; James R. Keene, vice-chairman; F. K. Sturgis, secretary and treasurer.

L. S. & W. P. Thompson head the list of winnings owners in the east last year with a total of $85,035, L'Alouette contributing $42,390 of the sum, mainly through her capture of the Futurity.

French Gray's fore legs are so infirm that it is probable she will be sent to Avondale to join the list of stud matrons there.

John Brannon has left Cincinnati for Nashville where he is to enter the service of Gen. W. H. Jackson of Belle Meade farm.
